

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. Mail item receiving device for receiving the mail items ejected through an exit slot of a folding and inserting machine, comprising a support plate on which the ejected mail items will accumulate, a front wall on which these mail items will abut upon their ejection, two lateral walls and a rear wall intended to align these mail items once they have fallen on the support plate, said support plate comprising two hollows made on either side of its longitudinal axis at the level of its join with said front wall, said two lateral walls each comprising an opening, at the level of each hollow and over the whole of their height,
5 wherein said rear wall comprises hooking means for connecting the receiving device to the folding and inserting machine.
- 10 2. The device of Claim 1, wherein said hooking means comprise two clips intended to cooperate with the two front feet of the machine.
- 15 3. The device of Claim 1, wherein said lateral walls each present an outer corner without sharp angle.
4. The device of Claim 1, wherein said rear wall integrating the hooking means is reinforced by ribs.
5. The device of Claim 1, wherein the device is made by moulding plastics material in one piece.
- 20 6. The device of Claim 5, wherein said lateral walls and the front wall are made of a transparent material.